

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Student Journal of the

GOLDMAN SCHOOL OF PUBLIC POLICY
UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY

Polycymatters

SPRING 2008

SUGGESTED SUBMISSIONS

- Features An article that focuses on a timely and interesting policy: its design, implementation, or practice. The article should incorporate independent research and support claims with convincing evidence. Length: 3,000-4,000 words.
- Commentary An article that focuses on the social aspects of a policy issue and may draw heavily on the author's own opinion. Length: 3,000-4,000 words.
- Policy in Practice A report by a practitioner who helped design or implement a specific public policy. The submission should explain the particular policy's significance and how it contributes to the relevant literature about the topic. Length: 3,000-4,000 words.
- Provocations A shorter article that described an ethical questions arising from a single policy or policy area; does not need to include recommendations. Length: 2,000 words.

GUIDELINES

Articles longer than 5,000 words will not be accepted. All submissions are subject to rigorous editing. Language should be jargon-free, understandable to non-expert readers, and should explain clearly any economic, mathematical or statistical methods. Please follow Chicago Manual of Style citation rules. Articles are published in print and online at <http://www.policymatters.net>.

DEADLINE: FEBRUARY 17, 2008

Please e-mail all submissions to: policymatters@berkeley.edu